ABSTRACT

More than 80 anthropology source materials concentrating on cultural and social anthropology are cited in this annotated bibliography. Materials, located in the McLennan Library at McGill University (Montreal), are listed according to type of material. Library of Congress call numbers are presented; dates of publication range from 1950 to 1985. Part I includes biographical references, dictionaries, and encyclopedias. Handbooks in part II include books on various ethnic groups and ethnographic theory and methods. Atlases and maps in part III are followed by directories of people; research institutions, courses, museums, and libraries; and serials. Literature surveys in part V include literature and book reviews and current awareness tools. Current bibliography and periodical indexes precede a retrospective bibliography which lists general anthropology topics, regional topics (Africa, American, Asia, Europe, the Middle East, and the Pacific and Australia), and special subjects (education; health, medicine, and nutrition; land tenure and land use settlements; urban anthropology and settlement studies; and women). The final part provides information on related dissertations. (LH)

Anthropology: GUIDE TO REFERENCE SOURCES

This revised list of anthropology source materials concentrates on cultural and social anthropology. Physical anthropology, linguistics and archaeology and folklore are treated only insofar as they are covered in works of broad scope.

Within these parameters, this list is by no means exhaustive, but it does introduce the major bibliographical tools for anthropological research. Specialized country or ethnic bibliographies are not listed here but they may be found by consulting the subject catalogues. The regional and special subject bibliographies included are just a selection of research materials available. General social sciences bibliographies have also been omitted. The bibliographies listed for dissertations do not represent all titles which might be useful to an anthropologist. The Comprehensive Dissertation Index (Z5055.U5A32x Ref. Index Stands), which covers primarily North American theses, provides subject and geographic approach; the Reference collection also contains cumulated lists covering area studies. These can be found in other guides prepared by the Reference Department and by using tne catalogues.

Because anthropology borders on other disciplines and also deals with all geographical areas of the world, students and researchers will find other bibliographies prepared by the Reference Department of use. Those of most interest are:

Archaeology
Linguistics
Africa South of the Sahara
Indians and Eskimos of Canada
Caribbeana
China
Folklore
Indian Sub-Continent
Latin American Studies
Polar Regions
Sociology
Geography

Though there are no data-bases accessed by computer devoted specifically to anthropology, there are some which can be useful for social anthropological topics: for example, Sociological Abstracts, PsychInfo (Psychological Abstracts) and Social Sci Search (Social Science Citation Index). Agricultural, educational and medical data-bases also exist, which could be of use for various anthropological topics. Questions about on-line searching possibilities should be addressed to the librarians at the Reference Desk.

Other Sources Within McGill

Within this bibliography, you will find references to two other libraries at McGill: the Medical Library, where material on the relationship between modern and traditional medical practices is being collected, and the Islamic Studies Library which, as its name suggests, concentrates on material on Islam not just in the Middle East and the Mahgreb, but also in South and Southeast Asia. Not all the holdings of the Islamic Studies Library are recorded in the McGill Union Catalogue, so the catalogue in that library needs to be consulted.

Material on the impact of Christianity in indigenous societies will be found also in the Religious Studies Library. The Centre for Developing Area Studies at McGill also has a documentation centre with valuable resources for various aspects of development in Third World countries.

The Government Documents collection is a good source for local statistics and governmental publications. This material is not usually noted in the McGill Union Catalogue; readers should go directly to the Government Documents Department to request assistance.

The University Map Collection in the Geography Department can be a source of material of use in anthropological research. The librarian there will help you to locate thematic maps relevant to your geographical area of study.

For studies on costume and modes of dress or adornment, consult the Blackader-Lauterman Library of Art and Architecture.

Resources Outside of McGill

The Human Relations Area Files, a collection of data for cross-cultural study derived from major ethnographic sources, is maintained on microform by the Bibliothèque des sciences sociales, Université de Montreal. Murdock's Outline of World Cultures and Outline of Cultural Materials mentioned in section II.B of this guide will introduce you to the arrangement and contents of the files.

There are other small libraries in Montreal which maintain documentation centres on various areas of the Third World, collecting material that has to do particularly with development issues in the areas of interest to them. Two in particular have well-developed documentation centres. They are:

Centre d'Etudes et de Cooperation International (CECI)

Centre de Documentation d'Amerique Latine (CEDAL)

For more information, ask at the Reference Desk.

Not all locations have been indicated for titles cited in this bibliography. For additional locations, consult the catalogues.

Reference librarians will be pleased to provide any assistance you may need in using this guide and the materials listed in it or in locating further information.

This bibliography was revised by Mary G. Mason, Reference Librarian, McLennan Library.

A full list of all the items cited by an author is added to the bibliographic citation found in the Source Index. Each volume has clear instructions to assist the user. It is also available for on-line searching. The other popular general Social Sciences Index and its antecedents (AI3.S62x Ref. Z5719 H35 Ref. Peabody Museum of Archaeology and Ethnology. Library. Catalogue [and Supplements]. Boston, G.K. Hall, 1963-1979. 84 v.

Z5719 H36 Ref. The main set of this catalogue reflected the holdings of the Library in the year 1962; since then, four supplements have been published, extending the coverage to 1978. This publication has now been superseded by Anthropological Literature (See section VI). It constitutes the basic bibliographic tool for retrospective searching. There is an author/title set and a separate subject catalogue; books, pamphlets, journals and journal articles are included. Since the subject headings used in the catalogue were developed and refined at the Library, two separately published thesauri were published and are shelved with the subject volumes.

VII. B. By Region

1. Africa

Z3501 I6x Ref. International African Bibliography. Bibliographie Internationale Africaine. v. 1, 1971 - London.

Lib. has: v. 1, 1971 -

A quarterly publication selectively indexing over 1,000 journals, formerly compiled by the Library of the International African Institute and now by the University of London School of Oriental and African Studies. The emphasis originally was on anthropological studies, though now the coverage has been enlarged to the humanities and social sciences generally. Arranged by geographical region and country, with subjects indicated at the end of each entry. Annual author/personality indexes. Over the years, the periodicals being indexed have varied and the changes are noted in each issue. There is a cumulative volume of the bibliography covering the years 1973-1978 (Z3501.I6x Ref.) and a printed version of the author and classified catalogue of the International African Institute (Z3501.I56x Ref.) covering the years 1929-1970. See also Bibliographie de l'Afrique Sud-Saharienne and its predecessors, which together cover the years since 1925 and includes a high proportion of ethnographic material (Z5113.T33 Ref.).

Z3509 M52 Ref. Joint Acquisitions List of Africana. 1978 - Boston.

Lib. has: 1978, 1979. [1978-83 cumulation on order].

Z3509 M45 1972 Ref. Melville, J. Herskovits Library of African Studies. Catalog of the Melville J. Herskovits Library of African Studies, Northwestern University Library and Africana in Selected Libraries. Boston, G.K. Hall, 1972. 8 v.

____. ____. Supplement. 1978. Boston, 1980.

An author/title and regional catalogue of the holdings of U.S. libraries with strong collections of Africana, which have cooperated in the Joint Acquisitions programme (designed to ensure the purchase of Africana by at least one U.S. library). It includes monographs, government documents, periodicals, newspapers and manuscripts, predominantly in Western languages. The Melville J. Herskovits Library is the most important of these cooperating libraries, and the older catalogue was based on its holdings alone. The subject volumes are arranged by region and country, sub-divided by subject.

B. 2. Americas

Z1209.2 N67H57 1983 Ref. Hirschfelder, Arlene B., and Mary Gloyne Byler and Michael A. Dorris. Guide to Research on North American Indians. Chicago, American Library Association, 1983.

A highly selective bibliography with informative annotations. It excludes ethnographic studies (for these, see Murdock below), but includes citations on art, music, religion, land tenure, political organization, housing, language, urban studies, etc.

Z1209.2 C45M32 Ref. McGlynn, Eileen A. Middle American Anthropology: Directory, Bibliography, and Guide to the UCLA Collections. Los Angeles, U.C.L.A., 1975.

The first section of the guide provides biographical information on "major contributors" to the field of study; the second section provides bibliographical information. The latter includes a useful list of relevant bibliographies, and a bibliography of major writings, indexed by geographical area and then by period studied. Author/title index.
